

WESTERLY MAN HIT BY FREIGHT

Martti Selin, 25, Loses Leg—Taken to Providence Hospital—
Rumor that Campbell and Heneault, of Norwich, Have Leased Solway Mill Buildings—Fall River Man Inspects
Woolen Mills—Horatio M. Thompson Found Dead in Bed in New York—Bedford-Taylor Marriage.

Martti Selin, unmarried, aged 25 years, was struck by a freight train at about 7 o'clock Monday evening at the Oak street bridge, having one leg cut off below the knee, the other foot crushed, and suffering a deep gash in the head. His cries were heard by Walter Fraser, who found Selin lying beside the tracks. The injured man received medical attention and was taken to the Rhode Island hospital at Providence on the 8:47 train.

Selin was walking alone from his boarding place to the village when struck by the train. He was employed as a Rod Stone quarry.

Since the Solway Mills company vacated the brick and stone mills in Main street about five years ago, there have been rumors almost weekly that the old buildings had been leased. Now comes another rumor that the mill buildings have been leased, but as William Segar, the owner, is now in Florida, there is no opportunity for verification. These buildings together with the business block known as the Briggs building, corner of Main and Broad streets, were formerly the property of the Sullivan Manufacturing company and were purchased with all the machinery and fixtures by William Segar and Henry B. Segar for the very low price of $25,000, the face of the mortgage, held by a local bank. Subsequently, the Segars rented the mills and machinery to Campbell & Heneault, manufacturers of woolen goods, who had large contracts with the government during the Spanish war. When Campbell & Heneault removed to Woonsocket, the property was leased to the Solway Mills company, manufacturers of fancy cotton goods. The Segars then disposed of all the woolen machinery in the buildings, the Solway company installing cotton machinery. The Solway company moved rapidly and after seven years, the company moved to its own plant in Pawtucket.

Campbell & Heneault subsequently moved from Woonsocket to Norwich, and now the rumors are to the effect that they are to come back to the Main street mills in Westerly or to establish a branch here. These manufacturers are familiar with the facilities for manufacture here and also with the local labor market, and it is known that they were in conference with Mr. Segar before he left for the north. At the recent auction sale of the Westerly Woolen Mills machinery, Campbell & Heneault purchased thirty or more of the bales and it is reported that these bales instead of being taken to Norwich are to be installed in the plant the purchasers formerly occupied in Westerly.

While the machinery of the Westerly Woolen Mills was being sold, it was passed off at auction last week, the mill property was reserved in anticipation of advantageous private sale. There is a report that Mr. Segar, of the firm of Segar, Fraser & Blackwood, of Fall River, dealers in mill machinery and mill buildings, has secured an offer.
